INTRODUCTION

In accordance with the Oklahoma State Historic Preservation Office Comprehensive Historic Context Development, an "Intensive Level Historic/Architectural Survey of the Riverview Neighborhood" was conducted by the City of Tulsa. The project was carried out under the Certified Local Government Program, designed to promote a partnership between the State Historic Preservation Office and local government.

This project recorded and photographed all individual properties in the Survey Area at a minimum level of documentation, regardless of their age. Minimum recording included completion of the Historic Preservation Resource Identification Form and two photographs of the property. The project was designed to provide a cost-effective approach for increasing the number of properties inventoried within the State of Oklahoma, and to enable the City of Tulsa to make better decisions concerning actions that affect historic resources. The results of this survey also provide documentation sufficient for preparation of a National Register of Historic Places Nomination Form for districts identified in the survey.

RESEARCH DESIGN

An area chosen by the City of Tulsa in conjunction with the Tulsa Preservation Commission and the State Historic Preservation Office was surveyed at an intensive level. The area had been previously identified in Tulsa's 1980, 1992, 1997, and 2005 Historic Preservation Plans as eligible for the National Register of Historic Places. The Survey Area is specifically identified in the Map labeled Attachment 1.

PROJECT OBJECTIVES

The objectives of the project were as follows:

1. To identify, record, photograph, evaluate and substantiate through intensive level survey those individual properties and potential district(s) in the Survey Area that meet the eligibility criteria for listing in the National Register of Historic Places.

2. To identify those portions of the Survey Area that do not warrant further study because of failure to meet National Register criteria.

3. To identify and annotate reference materials available for completing a National Register Nomination for properties and district(s) located within the Survey Area.

AREA SURVEYED

The Survey Area, which is identified on the map labeled Attachment 1, is located immediately south of downtown Tulsa, Oklahoma. The Survey Area boundary is generally defined by the Inner Dispersal Loop on the north; the Midland Valley Railroad right-of-way on the east; 21st Street on the south; and Riverside Drive on the west.

The Survey Area includes several additions. The first addition in the Survey Area was the Stansbury Addition, platted in 1905. Other early additions include Friend in 1906; Bayne in 1907; Buena Vista, Buena Vista Park, Cambell, and Stutsman in 1908; Carlton Place, Earns, Fred Yeager, and Sieg in 1909; and Cody and Holloway, Drew's, Stonebreaker Heights, and Townley in 1910. By the late 1930s residential development in the Survey Area was nearly complete.

METHODOLOGY

All buildings and structures within the Survey Area were surveyed at an intensive level. The survey was conducted in accordance with the Secretary of the Interior's "Standards and Guidelines for Archeology and Historic Preservation." In addition, the survey and accompanying report were compiled in accordance with the Architectural/Historic Resource Survey guidelines established by the Oklahoma State Historic Preservation Office and related guidelines set by the City of Tulsa's Certified Local Government staff.

As part of the survey effort, all buildings were visited for the purpose of collecting information and assessment of their architectural integrity. The information collected was recorded on survey forms designed in accordance with the standard Historic Preservation Resource Identification form found in the State Historic Preservation Office Guide entitled "Architectural/ Historic Resource Survey: A Field Guide." These forms were generated from the survey database stored in an Access format. A copy of the survey form can be found in Attachment 4 to this report. The dates of construction for the buildings in the survey area were confirmed by the use of Sanborn Maps, Polk Directories, and Tulsa County land records. Supplemental information was also collected for many of the potentially eligible buildings from local newspapers and other sources.

RESULTS

There were 611 buildings, one park, and two ceremonial sites identified in this Intensive Level Survey Area. There are three districts found in the Survey Area that appear eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places: the Riverview, Carson, and Cheyenne Historic Districts. These historic districts are each cohesive and stand alone as distinct residential areas within the Survey Area and the City of Tulsa. There were 185 buildings and one park identified outside any historic district boundaries. These properties are located primarily in the commercial area east of Boulder Avenue between the Inner Dispersal Loop and 21st Street.

The Riverview Historic District boundary is generally defined by the Inner Dispersal Loop on the north; the alley between Elwood Avenue and Denver Avenue, and in some locations Denver Avenue on the east, Riverside Drive on the on the west, and 16th Street on the south. The Riverview Historic District boundary is more specifically defined on the Map labeled Attachment 1.

The Riverview Historic District is characterized by hilly terrain, shady streets, and single-family residences. Focal points of the district include the portion of the River Parks trail lying west of the district between Riverside Drive and the Arkansas River; the McBirney Mansion overlooking the Arkansas River at 1414 S. Galveston Avenue; the Spotlight Theater located at 1381 S. Riverside Drive; and the Sophian Plaza located at 1500 S. Frisco Avenue. There are 225 buildings within this district.

The Carson Historic District boundary is generally defined by the Inner Dispersal Loop on the north; the alley between Carlton Place and Cheyenne Avenue on the east; Fifteenth Street on the south and Carthage Avenue on the west. The Carson Historic District boundary is more specifically defined on the Map labeled Attachment 1. A focal point of the district includes the Carlton Place Archway located at 14th Street and Carson Avenue. There are 45 buildings within this district.

The Cheyenne Historic District boundary is generally defined by Fifteenth Street on the north; Boulder Avenue on the east; Twenty-First Street on the south and Elwood Avenue on the west. The Cheyenne Historic District boundary is more specifically defined on the Map labeled Attachment 1. Focal points of the district include the Creek Council Oak Tree and Stickball Site located near 18th Street and Cheyenne Avenue. There are 156 buildings within this district.

Contributing Status of Properties

Table 1 presents the number of properties by contributing status found within the Survey Area, located both inside and outside proposed historic districts. The survey found that 70% of the properties within the Survey Area meet the age and architectural integrity requirements of the National Register. Most of the noncontributing properties in the district are considered to be so due to significant alterations to their original appearance or inadequate age. There were 19 properties found to be individually eligible for the National Register of Historic Places within the Survey Area of which 10 are currently listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

There were 225 buildings identified inside the Riverview Historic District boundaries. Properties that contribute to the district (including those individually eligible for the National Register) number 176. Non-contributing properties number 49 (35 due to age and 14 due to alteration). The percentage of contributing properties to total properties in the district was 78%. There were six properties found to be individually eligible for the National Register of Historic Places within the district boundaries.

There were 45 buildings inside the Carson Historic District boundaries. Properties that contribute to the district (including those individually eligible for the National Register) number 40. There were five non-contributing buildings three due to age and two due to alteration). The percentage of contributing properties to total properties in the district was 89%. There were no individually eligible buildings found within the district boundaries.

There were 156 buildings and two ceremonial sites identified inside the Cheyenne Historic District boundaries. Properties that contribute to the district number 131 (including those individually eligible for the National Register). Non-contributing properties number 27 (21 due to age and six due to alteration). The percentage of contributing properties to total properties in the district was 83%. There were 11 individually eligible buildings found within the district boundaries.

There were 185 buildings and one park identified outside of any historic district boundary. Properties that met requirements of the National Register numbered 84 (including those individually eligible for the National Register). Non-contributing properties numbered 102 (78 due to age and 24 due to alteration). There were two individually eligible buildings found outside of any historic district boundary.

Classification of Properties by Use

Tables 2 and 3 present analyses of the historic and current uses of buildings found both inside and outside the districts in the Survey Area. The Survey Area is a significant example of a residential neighborhood developed primarily between 1905 and the late 1930s during Tulsa's oil boom years. The most significant numbers are found in the single-family dwelling category. The Survey Area also includes a substantial number of multiple-family dwellings and businesses. A few religious structures were also identified. The Survey Area has few vacancies.

Building Classification by Historic Use

Total	225	45	158	186	614

Of the 225 properties identified inside the Riverview Historic District boundaries, 189 (84%) were originally single-family residences; 33 (15%) were multiple-family residences; two were businesses; and one Building was a religious structure. Over time, three of the single-family residences have changed use - two to Business use and one to vacant/not in use.

Of the 45 properties identified inside the Carson Historic District boundaries, 38 (85%) were originally single-family residences; six (13%) were multiple-family residences; and one was a business. Over time, four of the single-family residences have changed use - two to Business use and two to multiple-family residence.

Of the 158 properties identified inside the Cheyenne Historic District boundaries, 132 (84%) were originally single-family residences; 21 (13%) were multiple-family residences; two were businesses, two were ceremonial sites, and one was a school. Over time, 30 of the single-family residences and the lone school have changed to Business use.

Of the 186 properties identified outside of any historic district boundaries (most of which are located east of Boulder Avenue) 63 (34%) were originally single-family residences; 39 (21%) were multiple-family residences; 80 (43%) were businesses, two (1%) were religious structures, one was a park, and one was a fire station. Prior to this Survey a substantial number of single-family residences were torn down. Over time, 34 of the single-family residences have been changed to Business use.

Architectural Style of Properties

Table 4 presents the different building style classifications found in the Survey Area. A central characteristic of the Survey Area is that it consists mainly of residential buildings constructed in the Modern Movement style. The second most common style is Bungalow/Craftsman.

Other styles from the first quarter of the century that are prevalent in the Survey Area include Colonial Revival, Prairie School, and Tudor Revival.

The most common style in the Riverview Historic District is Bungalow/Craftsman. The district also includes a substantial number of Tudor Rival, Modern Movement, and Colonial Revival style houses.

The most common styles in the Carson Historic District are Bungalow/Craftsman and Colonial Revival. The district also includes a substantial number of Prairie School houses.

The most common style in the Cheyenne Historic District is Bungalow/Craftsman. The district also includes a substantial number of Prairie School, Modern Movement, and Colonial Revival style houses.

The most common style outside of any historic district is Modern Movement.

Date of Construction of Buildings by Age Group

Table 5 presents an analysis of buildings in the Survey Area by age. The Polk directories and the Tulsa County Land Records were helpful for obtaining approximate dates of construction.

The oldest existing building within the Riverview Historic District is a Colonial Revival style house located at 1415 South Elwood Avenue. It was built in 1905 and also appears to be the oldest existing building within the Survey Area. The Riverview Historic District contains younger subdivisions than the other two districts with only about 50% of its buildings constructed before 1930.

The two oldest existing buildings within the Carson Historic District were built in 1909. They are both Bungalow/Craftsman style houses and are located at 1406 South Carson Avenue and 1407 South Carthage Avenue, respectively. The Carson Historic District contains the oldest subdivision among the historic districts with its Friend Addition platted in 1906. Over 77% of the buildings within the Carson Historic District were constructed before 1930.

The oldest existing building within the Cheyenne Historic District is a 1907 Prairie School style house located at 1835 South Cheyenne Avenue. Over 63% of buildings within the Cheyenne Historic District were constructed before 1930.

SPECIFIC PROPERTIES IDENTIFIED AND TECHNIQUES OF INFORMATION COLLECTION

Information on the following properties was gathered through the use of several sources. Primary sources included the Tulsa Polk Directories, Sanborn Fire Insurance maps, and Tulsa County Land Records. Information was also obtained from sources available at the Tulsa Public Works and Development Department. A few buildings had stone insets with inscriptions and dates.

The Tulsa County Land Record System has records of plats and deeds on file for the ownership of land in the Survey Area. There were also a few buildings later constructed as infill inside the Survey Area. These buildings were either built after the demolition of an older house, or were placed on new lots created by the further subdivision of large estate holdings.

The buildings in the Survey Area that are outside any historic district boundaries did not warrant further study. However, since these properties are in some cases adjacent to a historic district, their removal and redevelopment may affect the integrity of a district depending on the scale and size of future projects considered.

All properties appear in the following list in address order with their property name (if known), address, resource type, style, date of construction, and area of significance.

INDIVIDUAL PROPERTIES AND HISTORIC DISTRICTS THAT MEET THE NATIONAL REGISTER CRITERIA FOR ELIGIBILITY

There were three districts found in the Survey Area that appear eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places; the Riverview, Carson, and Cheyenne Historic Districts. The survey also identified the following properties that are already listed in the National Register of Historic Places or currently meet National Register criteria for individual eligibility.

102 EAST 18TH STREET SOUTH (Fire Station #5)

This Mediterranean styled building boasted state-of-the-art firefighting technology and accommodations considered to be luxurious at the time it was originally built in 1917. This two-story, brick building has aluminum fixed windows. A brass fire pole connects the firefighter's living quarters with the ground floor garage. The station is the oldest facility currently in use by the Tulsa Fire Department and is individually eligible for the National Register under Criteria A and C.

235 WEST 18TH STREET SOUTH (Dresser Mansion)

Designed by New York City architect Albert Joseph Bodker, the Carl K. Dresser Mansion is a multi-story, stucco dwelling. Constructed in 1919-1920, the house is an excellent representation of the Spanish Eclectic style in Tulsa. The house is L-shaped with the three-story main section of the terra cotta covered roof being hipped. The three-story cross section of the roof is gabled with the south gable containing the primary entry. North of the three-story, gabled roof is a two-story section with a flat roof containing the servant's quarters and a three bay integral garage. Exterior decorative details include triple arched windows, iron railings and balconets, and French windows and doors. The Carl K. Dresser Mansion possesses a high degree of integrity of location, design, materials, workmanship, feeling and association. This building was listed in the National Register on June 2, 2000. It was listed under National Register Criterion C, and its NRIS number is 00000625.

1850 SOUTH BOULDER AVENUE WEST (Boulder on the Park)

Charles A. Sanderson and Roy Wesley Sanderson originally constructed this building in 1923 for Holland Hall School. Waite Phillips, W.G. Skelly and George S. Bole, along with several others, backed the project financially. The building was originally constructed with 9 classrooms, a shop, gymnasium, assembly auditorium, offices, and a chemical laboratory. The property was purchased by Aero Exploration Company in 1938. It was later sold to KTUL Radio, a CBS affiliate, and Tulsa Broadcasting Company. KTUL remodeled the building internally and externally, converting the appearance to its current "Art Moderne" theme. KTUL broadcasted on 1430 AM from their Boulder studios from 1947-1955. Besides the remodeling and placement of radio towers and neon KTUL signs, the phrase "Boulder on the Park" was coined on the air during broadcasts. It was listed in the National Register on September 2, 2003. It was listed under Criteria A and its NRIS number is 03000872.

1606 SOUTH CARSON AVENUE WEST (Joshua Cosden House)
The house is significant for its association with one of Tulsa's leading oilmen, as well as its architectural excellence and fine craftsmanship. Joshua Cosden, the house's original owner, and his wife, Ottille, arrived in Tulsa with a small amount of money and monumental ambitions. Cosden, the "Prince of Petroleum," soon matched fortune and power with people like Harry Sinclair, W.G. Skelly, Robert M. McFarlin and other oil notables.

This four bedroom, three bath Bungalow/Craftsman style home with wide, bright, tiled sun porches was the one of the most expensive homes in Tulsa in 1912. The house is individually eligible for the National Register under Criteria B and C.

1610 SOUTH CARSON AVENUE WEST (Robert McFarlin House)
This building is significant for its association with one of Tulsa's leading businessmen and civic leaders, as well as its architectural excellence and fine craftsmanship. Robert McFarlin, with his nephew James A. Chapman, formed the McMan Oil Company. McMan had one of the most successful operations in the Glenn Pool oil field. In 1910, McFarlin, with Harry Sinclair and other oilmen, organized the Exchange National Bank of Tulsa, now the Bank of Oklahoma.

This Prairie School style mansion was built in 1918 of reinforced concrete with a full-width stone portico over an entrance supported by six Doric columns. It was one of the first reinforced concrete residences in the southwest. The east elevation features stone lintels and keystones above the ground floor windows and doors. The red tiled, hip roof on this two-story brown brick home has copper gutters and downspouts. The House was listed in the National Register on December 25, 1979. It was listed under National Register Criteria C, and its NRIS number is 79002030.

1645 SOUTH CHEYENNE AVENUE WEST (Wrightsman Mansion)
This building is significant for its association with two of Tulsa's leading businessmen and civic leaders, as well as its architectural excellence and fine craftsmanship. Clarence Hindman, a wealthy Tulsa attorney, built this Prairie School style house in 1915, one of the early mansions on the ridge south of downtown Tulsa overlooking the Arkansas River. Of the four original mansions at the corner of South Seventeenth Street and West Cheyenne Avenue, only the Wrightsman survives. In 1920, the mansion was purchased by Edna and C.J. Wrightsman. Wrightsman arrived in Tulsa in 1906 and participated in the growth of the oil industry. He was active in territorial and state politics, as well as an active supporter of important civic improvements. The house is individually eligible for the National Register under Criteria C.

1718 SOUTH CHEYENNE AVENUE WEST (Bole House)
This building is significant for its association with one of Tulsa's leading businessmen and civic leaders, as well as its architectural excellence and fine craftsmanship. The home was built in 1919 by George Bole who brought artisans from Italy for its construction. Bole, involved in various real estate ventures, developed the Bolewood Acres Addition.

The two-story, stucco house has a hipped/gabled roof with three dormers. It has a small front portico with separated, painted columns supporting the corners of a flat roof balcony and has paired windows above its front door. The house is individually eligible for the National Register under Criteria B and C.

1750 SOUTH CHEYENNE AVENUE WEST (Creek Council Oak Tree)

The Creek Council Tree, a mature burr oak, marks the traditional "busk ground" chosen in 1836 by the Lochapoka clan of Creek Indians. In late 1834, they had begun their involuntary migration from Alabama under the control of the U.S. Government. It was a slow and painful trek; of the original group of 630, 161 died in route. Their 1836 arrival was marked with a solemn and traditional ceremony. A "busk" site was chosen on a low hill overlooking the Arkansas River. Here, according to their traditions, they deposited ashes brought over the trail from their last fires in Alabama and established their town. As late as 1896, the Lochapoka gathered here for ceremonies, feasts, and games.

The site was probably not used by the Indians after the turn of the century. Gradually it became a solid residential area of the growing city of Tulsa. The Creek Council Tree itself, however, survived. The oak, standing in its small, well-landscaped city park, serves as a meaningful memorial to the proud Indian tribe that brought law and order to a new homeland nearly 169 years ago. The park features an ethno-botanical garden displaying plants that were used by the Creek Indians for food, fiber, ceremonial and medicinal purposes. The Creek Council Tree was placed under Historic Preservation Zoning in January of 1992. The site was listed in the National Register on September 29, 1976. It was listed under National Register Criteria A, and its NRIS number is 76001576.

1802 SOUTH CHEYENNE AVENUE WEST (James Veasey House)

The Veasey House is significant to Tulsa for its historical association with James Alexander Veasey, the founder of Holland Hall School. Veasey built the house in 1912, after settling in Tulsa. He originally came to Oklahoma as a lawyer for the Dawes Commission. He lived in the home from 1912 until 1938, when he retired as Chief Counsel of Carter Oil Company, a subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

In keeping with its Colonial Revival style, the Veasey house has a simplicity of detailing and tailored design, meshing the most basic motifs of the period. It is a two-story house with a pitched roof, covered with composition shingles. The house, constructed of clapboard siding and painted white, is "T"-shaped in plan. The gabled roof has cornice returns, dentil molding, and modillions on all eaves and rakes. A dormer with traceried windows dominates the roof and is centered above the entry. This house was listed in the National Register on July 27, 1989. It was listed under National Register Criteria C, and its NRIS number is 89001006.

1805 SOUTH CHEYENNE AVENUE WEST (Creek Stickball Site)

The Creek Stickball site is associated with and located across the street from the Creek Council Oak Tree. The Council Oak marked the traditional "busk ground" chosen in 1836 by the Lochapoka clan of Creek Indians after their forceful removal from Alabama by the U.S. Government. It was in this area that the Creek Indians established their town. They gathered here for ceremonies, feasts, and games as late as 1896. The site is individually eligible for the National Register under Criteria A and D.

1830 SOUTH CHEYENNE AVENUE WEST (Walter-German-Norman House)
This building is significant for its association with one of Tulsa's leading businessmen and civic leaders, as well as its architectural excellence and fine craftsmanship. This house called "Crestview Manor" was a gift from Robert McFarlin to his daughter Pauline and her husband, Frank Walter. This Prairie School style house, built in 1919, was designed by Barnett-Haynes-Barnett of St. Louis, Missouri, the same architect Mr. McFarlin employed to design his 1610 South Carson residence. The firm also designed the McFarlin Building, a downtown office building.

The three-story stucco and brick home features winged porches with heavy square columns and tiled decks. The facade of the building opens to all sides with exterior French doors and many windows. The clay tile roof is supported by ornate bracketed eaves. The formal facade repeats the balance with two wrought iron balconies flanking a large front window that once served as a door. The house is individually eligible for the National Register under Criteria B and C.

1500 SOUTH FRISCO AVENUE WEST (Sophian Plaza)
The Sophian Plaza, completed in 1926, was one of the first deluxe apartment-hotels in Tulsa. Built by Dr. Harry T. Sophian of Kansas City in the Renaissance style, it offered a restaurant for occupants and guests, a tennis court, a delicatessen, a beauty parlor, meal room service and maid service. Rooms could be rented furnished or unfurnished. There were servant's quarters in the basement and some of the larger apartments had rooms and baths for white servants.

Dr. Sophian gave priority to the occupants' comfort and safety. The building is situated on its lot to take advantage of the best possible ventilation and cross breezes. Louvered doors in hallways aided circulation. Over the years the Sophian Plaza has housed some of the most prestigious business leaders and socially prominent families in Tulsa. It is individually eligible for the National Register under Criteria C.

1411 SOUTH GALVESTON AVENUE WEST (Bird House)
This building is significant for its association with one of Tulsa's civic leaders, as well as its architectural excellence and fine craftsmanship. The home was built in 1924 by James H. McBirney for his sister Caroline Bird. Caroline McBirney Bird's family occupied the home until 1962. The Colonial Revival style home features clinker bricks and limestone trim with stone sidewalks. The house is individually eligible for the National Register under Criteria B and C.

1414 SOUTH GALVESTON AVENUE WEST (McBirney Mansion)

This building is significant for its association with one of Tulsa's leading businessmen and civic leaders, as well as its architectural excellence and fine craftsmanship. James H. McBirney and his brother formed the Bank of Commerce in Tulsa in 1904. He soon built two of Tulsa's early skyscrapers: the 10-story McBirney office building and, adjacent to it, the first 8-story home for his bank. By 1918, he and two associates were developing the Childer's Heights subdivision along the Arkansas River. Many of Tulsa's first mansions were erected on the downtown's perimeter by some of Tulsa's early builders and developers. Ironically, McBirney's home is one of the last still standing.

The McBirney Mansion represents a happy blending of building and setting. The brick, stone, and stucco Tudor Revival style house was built by John Long of Kansas City in 1927. Landscaping features fine magnolias and cedars, a grotto, and a rock-lined walk that make effective use of the spring that gave the site its original importance. McBirney Springs has its source in an underground stream that surfaces here near the Arkansas River. The site was used by pioneers and early residents of Indian Territory for watering stock before crossing the river. A ferry replaced the ford at this point, serving travel between Tulsa and Red Fork until the advent of bridges. In 1832, Washington Irving is reported to have stopped at this spring and was so impressed by its beauty that he wrote about it. The mansion was listed in the National Register on November 13, 1976. It was listed under National Register Criteria B and C, and its NRIS number is 76001577.

1312 SOUTH GUTHRIE AVENUE WEST (Patrick Kerr House)
This building is significant for its association with one of Tulsa's leading businessmen and civic leaders, as well as its architectural excellence and fine craftsmanship. Patrick M. Kerr, a wealthy oil refiner, had this home built before losing his fortune in 1925.

This large, Prairie School style home has a hipped, tile roof. The two-story, stucco home has a partial front porch. The house is individually eligible for the National Register under Criteria B and C.

1322 SOUTH GUTHRIE AVENUE WEST (Clinton-Hardy House)

This building is significant for its association with one of Tulsa's leading businessmen and civic leaders, as well as its architectural excellence and fine craftsmanship. The house has significance for its role in the development of Tulsa, specifically its influence in directing Tulsa's growth to the south of the downtown district. It was designed by George Winkler, an architect who rarely worked in residential architecture. The Clinton-Hardy house was one of the first two of any size to be built on the bluff overlooking the Arkansas River south of the business area. Prior to its construction, the more prominent individuals built their homes either to the north of downtown or the near southeast. The result of Clinton's move was the completion of Galveston and Guthrie Avenues with several other period houses of architectural importance.

The Clinton-Hardy House, built in 1919, has a strong New England flavor. The exterior lapped siding, simple rectangular shape, gable roof, and exterior trim work all evoke an image of 18th century colonial America. The symmetrical main block of the house carefully directs the eye to a Georgian entrance with flanking Doric columns, arched pediment, and dentil trim. The house was listed in the National Register on January 23, 1979. It was listed under National Register Criteria C, and its NRIS number is 79002027.

1324 SOUTH MAIN STREET WEST (Ambassador Hotel)
The Ambassador Hotel is a detached, rectangular, Renaissance style masonry building constructed in 1929. The building's footprint is approximately one hundred and twenty feet by forty-five feet. The building is nine stories tall and has a full basement. The ground floor features a lobby with rooms to the west and access stairs to the basement restaurant on the east. There is an interior stair centrally located on the north wall of the building. The building's roof is flat and hidden from view by a parapet. The hotel was listed in the National Register on November 17, 1999. It was listed under National Register Criteria C, and its NRIS number is 99001085.

228 WEST 17TH PLACE SOUTH (Moore Manor)

The Moore Manor, built in 1917 only ten years after Oklahoma's statehood, is significant for its association with the oil boom of Tulsa. Frank L. Moore started business as a small drilling contractor and parlayed a few drilling interests into an oil empire. With his newfound wealth, he purchased a prime lot within the new Buena Vista Park Addition and built Moore Manor. Such oil industry giants as the Sinclairs, Cosdens, Roesers, and the McFarlins resided in this addition.

The house is one of the finest examples of Colonial Revival residential architecture constructed during those early oil boom years. It is also an outstanding example of excellence craftsmanship and detailing. Its four stories consist of a full basement, first and second floors, and a finished attic. Its brick veneer is of rough red brick, laid in very light gray mortar, with coursing of a common running bond. Building corners are done with brick quoins while all trim is of light gray limestone. The four-way hipped roof is covered with slate shingles, pierced with wall dormers on the entire perimeter. This building was listed in the National Register on February 19, 1982. It was listed under National Register Criteria A and C, and its NRIS number is 82003705.

1381 SOUTH RIVERSIDE DRIVE (Spotlight Theater)

This building was constructed in 1929 for Mrs. Patti Adams Shriner, a music teacher who wanted to combine a music studio for teaching piano lessons with her living quarters.

Designed by Architect Bruce Goff, it is a two-story, stucco, building set on a sloping site facing the Arkansas River. The design of the building reflects an influence of both Art Deco and the International styles but with a more personalized interpretation. The underlying inspiration for the design is music, evoking a concept that architecturally might be interpreted as "frozen music." This theme is visualized in the treatment of the windows on the façade of the building. The rhythm of windows and inset tile forming diagonal patterns on the walls of the entrance hall drew their inspiration from musical scales. The round window on the front of the building derived its decorative pattern from musical scores that Goff composed while he was working on the design. Even the fountain, designed by Alphonso Iannelli, used abstract marble sculpture with pipes that dripped water over the sculpture onto chromimium cups. These were of varying size to create music-like tones as the water splashed into the pool below. The rigid cubism form of the building is reinforced by an enormous round window and other geometric shapes. Today it serves as a theater hosting the dramatic performance of an old fashioned melodrama, "The Drunkard." It was listed under criterion C and its NRIS number is 01000656.

AREAS EXAMINED THAT DO NOT MEET THE ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA AND THE JUSTIFICATION

The survey identified buildings within the Survey Area which do not contribute to a Historic District because they fail to meet National Register criteria. Findings of the survey recommend excluding part of the survey area from any historic district as identified on Map labeled Attachment 1. The area to be excluded is located primarily in the commercial area east of Boulder Avenue between the Inner Dispersal Loop and 21st Street.

IDENTIFICATION OF PROPERTIES AND POTENTIAL DISTRICTS THAT REQUIRE ADDITIONAL RESEARCH TO ASSESS THEIR NATIONAL REGISTER ELIGIBILITY

No buildings or districts are recommended for further study to assess their potential for National Register Eligibility.

HISTORIC CONTEXT

The major boundaries of the Riverview Neighborhood are physically and visually apparent. The Inner Dispersal Loop (Broken Arrow Expressway) on the north boundary separates the neighborhood from Tulsa's Central Business District. On the east, the Midland Valley Railroad right-of-way (now a pedestrian and bicycle path) separates the neighborhood from the Maple Ridge Historic District. To the south, the boundary is formed by 21st Street. The Arkansas River and River Parks Trail, as well as Riverside Drive, form the western boundary.

The Riverview Neighborhood derived its name from the Riverview Elementary School that was located at 512 West Twelfth Street. The school was demolished in 1975, but the area's identification with the name of the school continues. Acquisition of the right-of-way for construction of the Broken Arrow Expressway in 1968 caused the clearance of approximately 12 city blocks on the north edge of the original neighborhood.

The earliest history of the area appears to have been written by Washington Irving. While participating in a U.S. Army survey of Indian Territory in 1832, Irving stopped to rest at what is known today as the McBirney Spring near the southwest corner of Riverside Drive and Houston Avenue (McBirney Mansion Site). He was so impressed with the beauty of the area that he recorded his thoughts about the setting in his journal.

The first major settlers in the area were the Lochapoka Clan of the Creek Indians. They kindled their first Council fire under the Creek Council Oak Tree in 1836, near what is now 18th Street and Cheyenne Avenue. The tree marks the Central Square of the early Creek town they established here that was sometimes called "Tulsey-Town". The Creek Nation continues the tradition of "councils under the tree" with a public ceremony held each fall.

The City of Tulsa was incorporated in 1898. As the city grew, new neighborhoods were formed along downtown's edges. The Carlton Place Subdivision, located in the Carson Historic District, is an excellent example. Built by John Blair, a well-known Tulsa architect, Carlton Place was the newest and most fashionable residential area in Tulsa in 1909. It attracted many newcomers, as well as oil men, through the brick archways at 14th Street and Cheyenne Avenue, and 14th Street and Carson Avenue (Only a portion of the archway at 14th Street and Carson Avenue remains today). By the mid-1920s, over 90% of its residents were listed in the City's directory as "Oil Producers." The Carlton Place Subdivision remains one of the most intact residential areas within the Survey Area.

The area developed a substantial ethnic character with the settlement of a large number of Greek immigrants. The Greek community established their Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church on property that is now part of the Broken Arrow Expressway. With the construction of that Expressway in 1968, the Church was demolished and a new building was constructed at 1222 South Guthrie Avenue. Each year a Greek Festival is held each fall and the public is invited to tour the interior of one of Tulsa's most beautiful and ornate churches.

The Jewish community also had a strong early presence in the Survey Area. The first synagogue building in Tulsa was located at Ninth Street and Cheyenne Avenue just north of the Survey Area. It was built in 1916 by Congregation B'nai Emunah. Its two-story, red brick building was trimmed in white marble and had a rose window and a Byzantine-style onion dome. Morris Teller was the congregation's first rabbi. The Congregation moved its synagogue to its current location at 17th Street and South Peoria Avenue in 1942.

Many families of German Jewish extraction lived in the Survey Area. Temple Israel had been founded in a Tulsa Chamber of Commerce meeting room on December 8th, 1914. Their Reform sect is affili ın Hebrew Congregations. From More flexible 45 yrs services were held in the E g in downtown Tulsa. Chronological limits of the Survey Area

The chronological limits of the Riverview Survey Area are from 1905 through 1955. The beginning date reflects the approximate year the first, still existing, residence was built in the Riverview area. The cut-off date of 1955 reflects the last year of eligibility according to the National Register 50-year age rule for eligible properties.

Appropriate Historical Themes Expressed in the Survey Area

Residential development is a primary historic theme expressed generally within the Survey Area and more specifically within the three historic districts identified. The Survey Area contains good examples of housing constructed for upper-income residents, primarily during Tulsa's oil boom from 1905 to the late 1930s. Many buildings identified in this survey are exceptional examples of the housing styles built during this time period.

The residential neighborhoods identified by this survey were among a number of early residential areas constructed on the edges of downtown Tulsa as the city grew. The development of these early residential neighborhoods suggests Urban Development as another primary theme for the Survey Area and the three historic districts identified.

In addition to the Residential Development and Urban Development themes mentioned above, the European Settlement and Religion themes are expressed in the Riverview Historic District by the 1920s settlement of a Greek community and the establishment of its church; and also by the establishment of their Temple building by the Jewish community in 1919, as described above.

In addition to the Residential Development and Urban Development themes mentioned above, the Native American theme is expressed in the Cheyenne Historic District by the Creek Council Oak Tree and its associated Stick Ball site, as described above.

Appropriate National Register Criteria for Evaluation

The historic districts identified by this survey are most appropriately evaluated for National Register status under Criterion A for their association with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history; and under Criterion C for their embodiment of the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction.

General Physical characteristics of all property types in the Survey Area

Today, the Survey Area is a healthy, urban area. It is characterized by hilly terrain, shady streets, and single-family residences. Many styles of architecture are present. Prominent architectural styles include Modern Movement, Bungalow/Craftsman, Colonial Revival, Prairie School, and Tudor Revival. The Survey Area has some of the first residential areas to mix smaller homes with those built by the wealthier elite. Parts of the Survey Area also contain a substantial mixture of residential and small office uses.

SUMMARY

There were 611 buildings, one park, and two ceremonial sites identified in this Intensive Level Survey Area. There were three districts found in the Survey Area that appear eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places; the Riverview, Carson, and Cheyenne Historic Districts. These historic districts are each cohesive and stand alone as distinct residential areas within the Survey Area and the City of Tulsa. There were 19 properties found in the Survey Area that are individually eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

There were 185 buildings and one park identified outside any historic district boundaries. These properties are located primarily in the commercial area east of Boulder Avenue between the Inner Dispersal Loop and 21st Street.
